The owner of The Mews Thai Restaurant Lindon Sedman returned from living and working in Asia after 12 years, and decided to open a Thai restaurant in one of Poulton's oldest buildings in September 1998.

The Mews use only the freshest local lean meats, seafood, and best quality vegetables, mixed with herbs and spices imported from Thailand. The Mews Thai Restaurant takes great pride in all of the dishes we serve, they are made fresh to order without the use of MSG. Our marinades and dips are made on the premises using only the finest ingredients by our experienced chefs.

We hope you enjoy your meal and look forward to seeing you again in the future.

A bit of history about our building...

At the start of the century our restaurant was known as 49 Potts Alley. In the photograph you will see 49, Potts Alley about 1920, showing the cottages that now form the west end of Chapel Street Court. At the start of this century many of Poulton's characters either lived or had businesses in Potts Alley. Ike Ismay, a horse dealer, had his stables on Potts Alley and lower down lived Old Hughie and Modder River Dick, named after a campaign he fought in the Boer War. The Model Lodging House run by Harry Slater was in Potts Alley. It was here on Saturday afternoon 12th August 1944 that John Lonsdale and his common law wife Susannah Bradshaw returned after having had a heavy drinking session, they started to argue and Lonsdale hit Susannah with a wooden plunger knocking her to the ground dead. John Lonsdale ran off but was captured later that day and sentenced to three years imprisonment at Lancaster Assizes.
